National Museum of Agriculture

NÁRODNÍ
ZEMĚDĚLSKÉ
MUZEUM

National Museum of Agriculture is next to the school Gymnázium Nad Štolou, which is next to the Letenská pláň. Correct adres is: Kostelní 1300/44. The building of National Museum of Agriculture has four floors, one underground floor, one basement and has a beautiful roof. It is made of bricks. When you are entering in the building with the main entrance, by your sides you can see two old tractors.

National Museum of Agriculture is been founded in 1918 and since 1938 it is in this building. During the First Republic, the museum established branches in Brno (in the Bergl Palace), Opava, Bratislava and Mukachevo. They stopped exist during the Second World War and the items from the collections were concentrated in Prague. First building of national Museum of Agriculture was palace Sylva-Taroucca in the street Na Příkopě.

National Museum of Agriculture is mainly focus on agriculture, as you read from the name. There is exposure of tractors, Fishing, Hunting, Gastronomy, Agriculture Lively, Discovery Room, Water in the Landscape and Laboratory of Silence. Also on the roof is Garden of views.

I would like to describe the exposure of tractors. It is on an area of over 500 square meters. There are over 20 different types of tractors made between years 1917-1953. For smaller kids there are pedal tractors and balance bikes. Also you can take picture on Zetor 15 which is right next to the four game computers with Farming simulator on it! In the corner of this exposure, there is drive simulator Zetor Major.

In my opinion, there should be more benches. I don't like reading interesting informations while my legs is hurts. I like interaction of this exposures, it is unbelievable how much you can do by yourself. All in all I really like this exposures.
